

Dr. Ryoma Morigaki

Graduate School of Biomedical Sciences,
Tokushima Univ., Japan

Dr. Morigaki is a specially appointed professor of Advanced Brain Research and a director of stereotactic and functional neurosurgery at Tokushima University. He has a long-standing interest in basic research on Parkinson's disease, dystonia, and Huntington's disease. Clinically, his work focuses on developing improved treatments, particularly for patients with dystonia.