

Prof. Jinyoung Youn

Dept. of Neurology, Samsung Medical Center,
Sungkyunkwan Univ. School of Medicine, Korea

Dr. Jinyoung Youn is a Professor at Samsung Medical Center (SMC), Sungkyunkwan University School of Medicine, Seoul, Korea, and also works as a vice-director of SMC Neuromodulation Center and a director of GAIT LAB at the same institute. He graduated from Sungkyunkwan University School of Medicine and got a PhD degree from the same university. He completed a fellowship at Samsung Medical Center and Toronto Western Hospital.

His academic interest is focused on advanced Parkinson's disease, from the evaluation of axial symptoms using imaging analysis, gait analysis, and wearable sensors, to various treatment modalities including deep brain stimulation and non-invasive brain stimulation. He published more than 150 articles in international peer-reviewed journals.

He is also included in various committees and study groups of Movement Disorders Society and International Association of Parkinsonism and Related Disorders, and works as a chair of Scientific Committee of Korean Movement Disorders Society and an editorial board member in various international peer-reviewed journals.